Your doctor has many credentials that reflect years of education and training. You may notice many certificates and diplomas in the office. Some of the many credentials include:

State Board: A license issued to your physician which allows him/her to practice medicine in this state. Physician must pass an exam and adhere to all state laws regarding the practice of medicine.

American Board of Pediatrics: Certifies that your physician has completed at least 3 years of specialty training in pediatrics beyond medical school.

American Academy of Pediatrics: Indicates that your physician has membership in this group of board certified pediatric practitioners.

Our special thanks go out to the following pediatrician whose assistance was instrumental in making this guide possible.
